INCAE is a private, non-profit, multinational, higher-education organization devoted to teaching and research endeavors in the fields of business and economics aimed at training and instructing, from a worldwide perspective, individuals capable of successfully holding top management positions in Latin America.

In 1964, the business community and the governments of the Central American nations founded INCAE as an initiative. Since its inception it has had the technical supervision of the Harvard Business School.

INCAE is presently focused on three key activities:

1. Masters programs in areas critical for Latin American development.
2. Executive training programs and seminars.
3. Research projects on competitiveness in the region. INCAE has an applied approach combining the best practice and the world frontier of knowledge with the realities in Latin America.

INCAE is accredited by SACS (Southern Association of Colleges and Schools) in the USA to grant its master's degree. It is an affiliate of AACSB International (The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business), NASPAA (National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration), and BALAS (Business Administration and Latin American Studies) and a member of CLADEA (the Latin American Business School Council). INCAE programs are accredited in Europe, by the European Foundation for Management Development (EFMD).
